A. Announcements / Upcoming Events

1. Seats Available in Animal Cell Culture Lab!
   - Looking to get your Animal Science Laboratory requirement completed? Consider taking our NEW Animal Cell Culture Laboratory Course!
   - This course will initially be listed as ANS 198, so you will need to search for the course directly by CRN: 11733.
   - Animal Cell Culture will be taught by Dr. Rablo Ross. This course will hold lecture on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 1-2 pm, and lab on Mondays and Wednesdays from 2-5pm.
   - Keep in mind that many of the laboratory classes offered in Spring fill up quickly, so this course may be a great opportunity to save stress by satisfying your lab requirement early, while at the same time learning unique and applicable laboratory skills!

2. Coffee with the Dean
   - Join Dean Helene Dillard for coffee, tea, and snacks for an opportunity to share your thoughts and ask questions!
   - Coffee with the Dean will be held on Thursday, December 3rd, 2015 from 2:15-3:30 pm in the Multipurpose Room of the Student Community Center.
   - All undergraduate students in the College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences are invited!
   - Please RSVP to this free gathering by November 26th. Here is the link to RSVP: http://is.gd/coffeewiththedean

4. Get Involved with Aggie Ambassadors!
   - Interested in promoting the College of Agricultural and Environmental Sciences? Seeking to expand your knowledge of your campus and the industry? Build your leadership skills while participating in many unique educational and community outreach activities with the Aggie Ambassadors!
   - Meetings are Tuesdays from 12:10-1:00 pm in 3001 Plant and Environmental Sciences Building,
• For 1-2 units of credit, you can take the Aggie Ambassadors course! Here are the CRNs for Winter 2016:
